The Great
Promise

The years behind passed by and fade beneath the dust of the fleeting traveler.

Vague shadows of wars, dark centers of famine: outshown by the dancing light of hope.

Elusive firefly, the road ahead lies clear and clean, paved with the golden asphalt of experience upon which to build Tomorrow!

Look ahead to a world without hunger or disease or war.

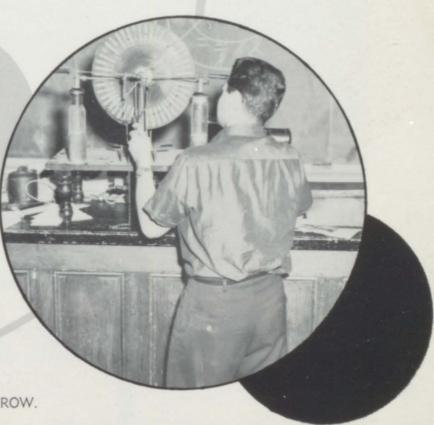

Ships, propelled by tiny beings called atoms, leaving homes with plastic walls, over seas made farms to feed spreading Man.

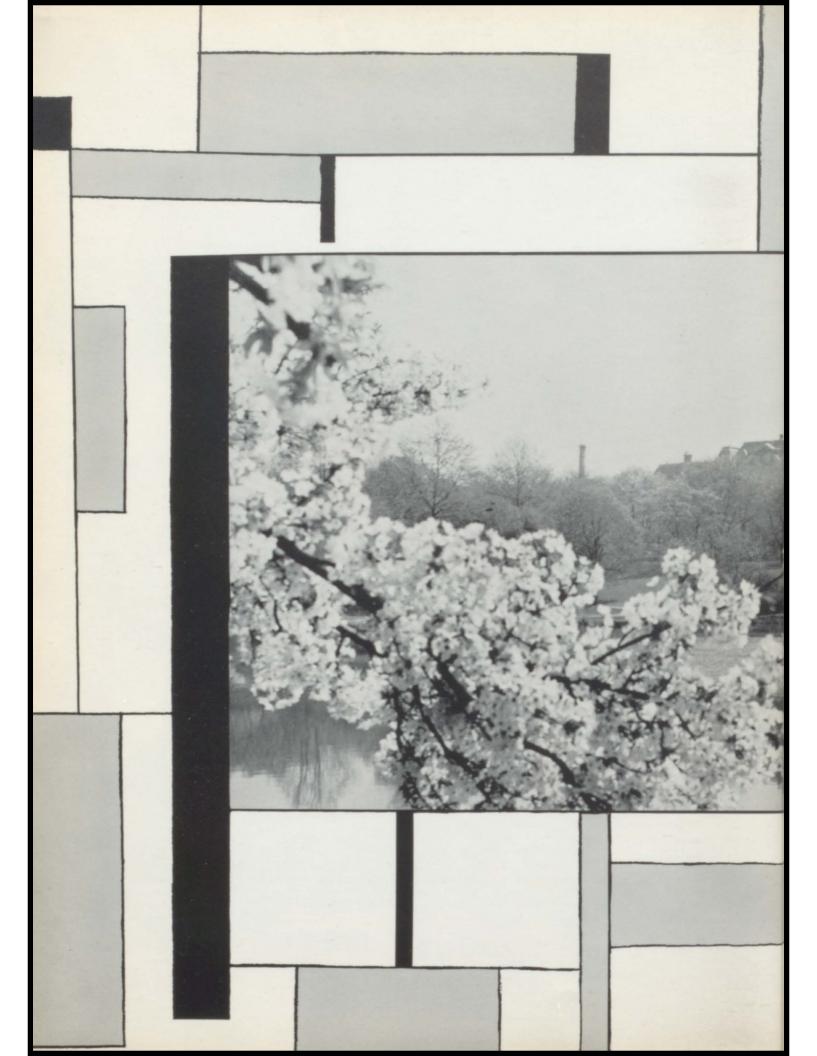

The eternal universe to be pierced and lacerated by rockets to planets far planting the seeds of humanity.

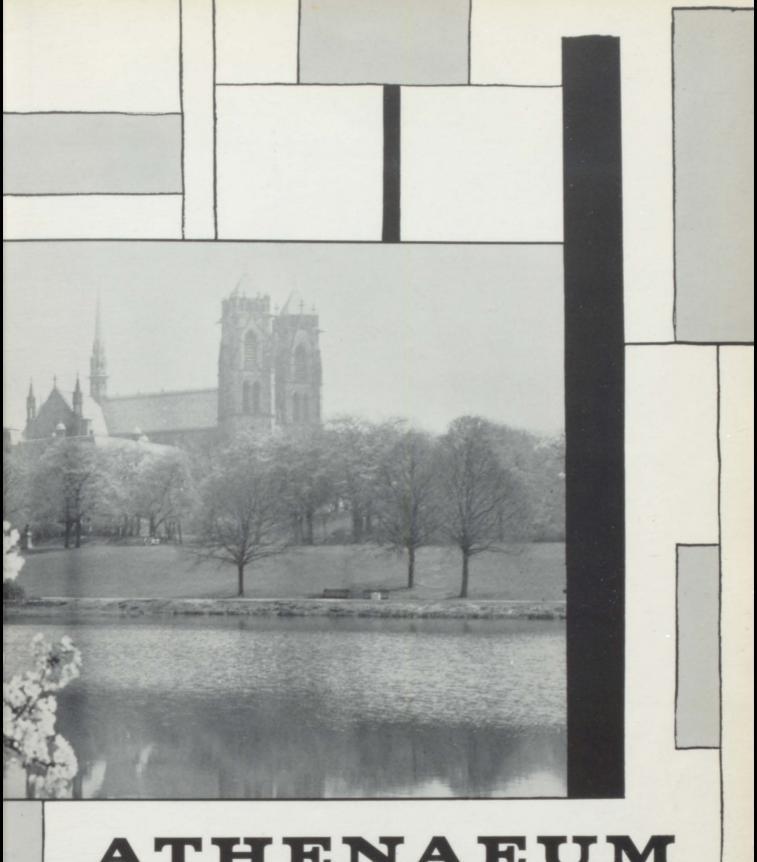

This peace, this hope is what lies unfound but by an hour, a week, a year. Hope lies in man conquering himself, and loving, not tolerating, his brother.

Hope lies ahead — o'er the THRESHOLD OF TOMORROW.

ATHENAEUM

BARRINGER HIGH SCHOOL NEW JERSEY NEWARK

Dedication . . .

Within His Room, He Showed Us A World

In recognition of Samuel Buhrman's thirty-five years of devoted service to Barringer High School as an outstanding teacher of science and director of audio-visual aids, the June Class of 1959 proudly honors this most capable and effective educator by dedicating its yearbook to him.

As the third oldest high school in the United States, Barringer has always enjoyed an enviable reputation as a school of high academic achievement. Probably more than any other factor it is a dedicated faculty that is responsible for setting the tone and character of a school. Mr. Buhrman, charged with the responsibility of proficiently training some of America's future scientists and technicians, has always fulfilled his obligation with distinguished success.

Mr. Buhrman's legendary wily humor with which he punctuates his lectures will long be remembered, including his often quoted remark, "You reserve your right to flunk." In his classes Mr. Buhrman has always upheld the traditional virtues and values in spite of the pressures of this modern age of cynicism. He has always emphasized the importance of sound character training, honesty, integrity, service to fellowmen, self-discipline, restraint, and the value of scholarship. He is a selfless man. We the students wish to publicly acknowledge our appreciation for the many hours that Mr. Buhrman volunteered to set-up audio-visual equipment for numerous student affairs in the school. We do remember him coming in on weekends to set-up lights and amplifiers for our dances.

In your long career, Mr. Samuel Buhrman, you have ably instructed and inspired many students. We, the Senior Class of 1959, are proud to have been your students.

The United Nations is

THEY SHALL BEAT THEIR SWORDS INTO PLOWSHARES. AND THEIR SPEARS INTO PRUNING HOOKS, NATION SHALL NOT LIFT UP SWORD AGAINST NATION, NEITHER SHALL THEY LEARN WAR ANY MORE

the Future Hope of Man

A significant development of the twentieth century is the formation of the United Nations, a dream long in the making. For the first time in the history of human affairs, a serious attempt is being made to make international law prevail. True, the institution is a feeble seedling, but it is taking root, and big ideas take time to premeate.

Science is shrinking distance rapidly and making cultural isolation and nationalism obsolete. The interdependence of man has never been more apparent. The arts appeal to a world wide audience, and knowledge is the accumulation of world study and thought. Within minutes, world events are communicated around the globe. International television, which is in the offering, will accelerate a cultural global renaissance. The next half century will require a higher intellect to cope with new complexities. The European Common Market is a harbinger of greater unity of action of people with common interests.

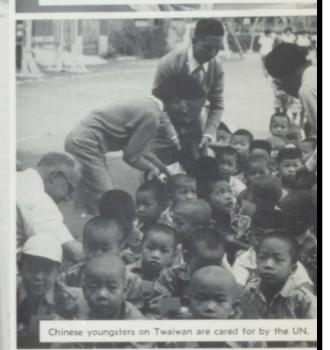

"The proper study of man is mankind," so said Alexander Pope. Never before has there been so much research conducted about the true nature of man. Biologists, psychiatrists, physiologists, and antropologists are some of the scientists revealing to us new insights as to man's inner self. As a consequence of these new scientific revelations, man's adjustment and his pursuit of happiness should be made an easier task. Human behaviorism and motivation are being explored to greater, more revealing depths of understanding.

One thing we are sure of and that is that science has enhanced man, endowed him with greater significance. Man is not obsolete for the new age.

Medical Science Conquers

Human Suffering

Medicine has advanced more in this century than in all the other centuries put together. Eighty per cent of the drugs now in use were developed after World War II. The Salk vaccine conquered dreaded polio. Medical research is closing in on the deadly and perfidious cancer. Surgery is performing amazing feats . . . heart operation, cornea transplants, retinal detachment, new orthopaedic procedures, etc. To make these radical operations possible, new anesthetics have been developed. We are on the brink of finding the causes and cures for other major diseases that afflict man. Miraculous rehabilitation techniques and training are giving new hope to the handicapped. Preventive medicine is receiving serious attention. In the last twelve years, the life span of man has been increased by six years.

Science Shrinks

The year 1959 marked the advent of the passenger jet age. We can now cross the country in five and a half hours. Supersonic speeds are in the offing in the near future. A nuclear powered plane is now being developed by the Air Force. The keel of the first nuclear powered surface vessel has been laid. Nuclear submarines have amazing potentialities; exotic fuels will increase rocket thrust power. Automobiles are destined for dynamic changes in engineering and design.

Facsimile newspapers, video tape, color television, long range TV, micro-wave transmission, and phono-vision are adding new dimensions to communications.

School Doesn't End at

Dr. John Giannini's Italian Club is perhaps the most vigorous organization on campus. Recently, won first place in a foreign language contest at Rutgers University.

2:30 for Many Students

Every spring, the popular co-ed Tennis Club provides professional instruction to enthusiastic tennis players. The pro is Mr. Sal Salerno.

The Members of the Future Teachers of America Club, rlumbering 40, make a detailed study of the profession. Guest speakers and field trips to colleges are highlights of their busy schedules.

The Music Appreciation Club digs serious music. Field trips to concerts and the opera make this an engrossing club.

There is always something developing in the photography club. Talented and knowledgeable adviser is Mr. Richard Stolz.

Clubs Enrich

"Shall we recognize Red China?" This is the red hot issue that the debating club takes up.

The dynamic voice of the students is the duly elected Student Council, vociferous and articulate leader of the school.

The mysteries of nature and life are candidly studied by the Biology Club members who are doing nutritional research with the aid of mice.

Barringer's chess team challenges all comers. The team plays opponents in schools throughout Essex County.

Program of Studies

Parent-Teachers-Association with great tenacity has been campaigning for a new building. The Board of Education has been duly impressed by the North Ward community spirit.

The Home Economics Club is exclusively the providence of gourmets, who enjoy exotic cooking.

French Club practices the vigorous French reel.

No, it isn't really the Anti-Cliché club; it is the Creative Writing Club.

Hi-Y Club, representing the Y.M.C.A., plans splash parties.

Friendships, Participation, and Leadership are by-products of Clubs

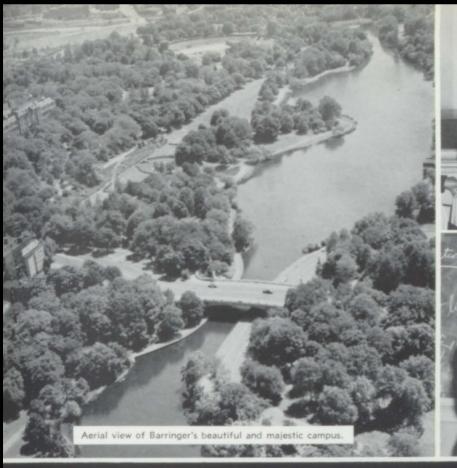

President, Manuel Carballo, addresses Newark Youth Council, an organization that has a nation-wide reputation. Barringer students are well represented with six active delegates and two advisers.

COURT JESTERS

Striggles pumps in another jump shot.

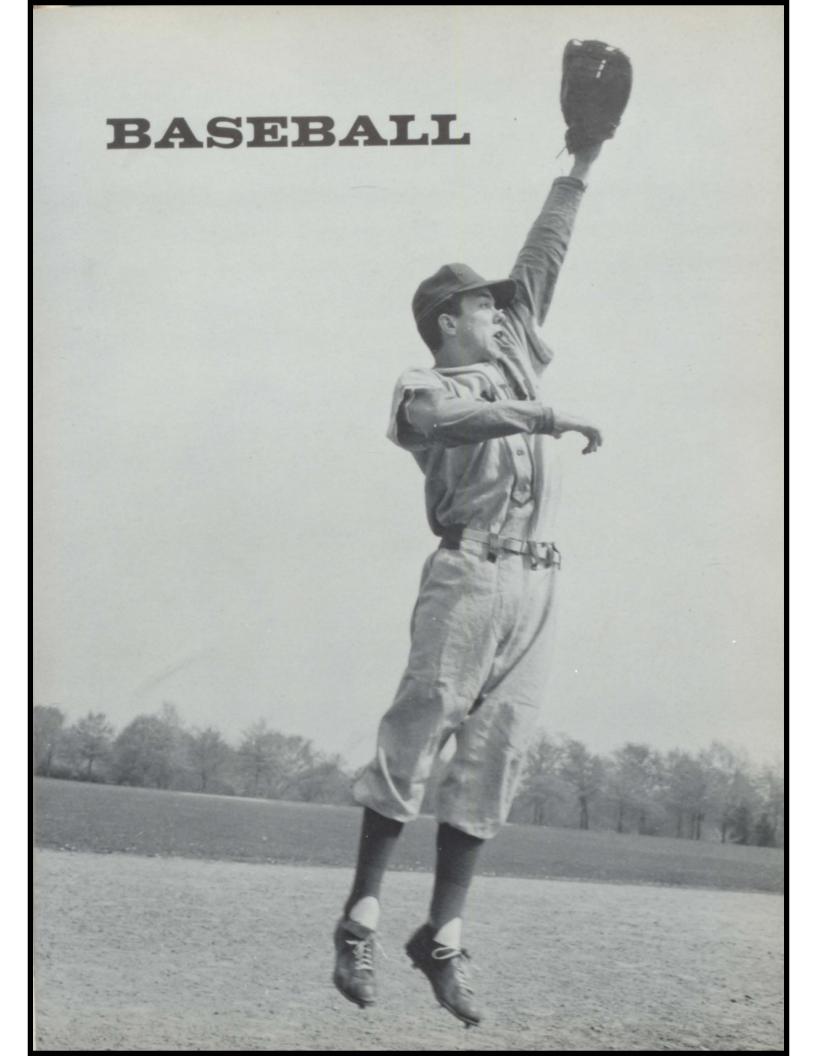

Versatile Irving Striggles — Team's high scorer, gained All-City honors.

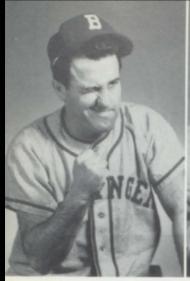

Lean Ronnie Carr — Big Blue's rebounding ace, key man under the boards.

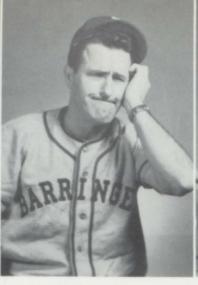

Sharpshooting Roger Del Russo — Led team in freethrow accuracy.

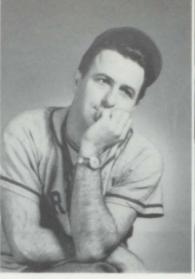

"Let's hustle boys! We're only ten runs behind."

"This is a team?"

"I wonder what's for dinner?"

"Cheese and crackers. He dropped the ball!"

Jim Biscardi — Our anchor man at third base. Jimmy played with quiet agility.

Frank Vitolo — Our own Mickey Mantle and Captain of the team. A heavy hitter, Frank slugged the team to victory.

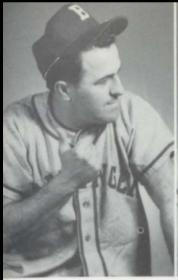

Joe Florio—"Lumberlegs" covered a lot of ground at second base. Joe's fielding plays stopped many rallies.

Johnny Vitiello — "Little John". Our little lefty with a big bat. Johnny pitched and won many of our key games.

Bob Lutter—Bob was the "Holler Guy" on the team. His specialty was getting the clutch hit that won many games.

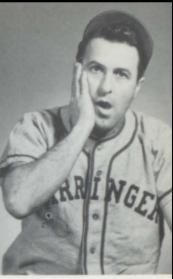

"You're not getting any gifts at this shower, Lutter."

"Vitolo, I told you to play deep. But get off the flag pole."

"Hey, Florio, wake up!"

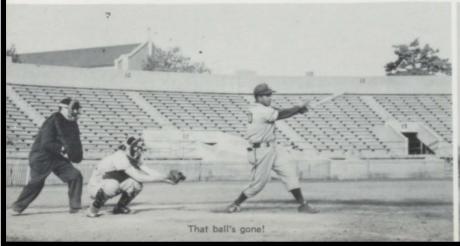

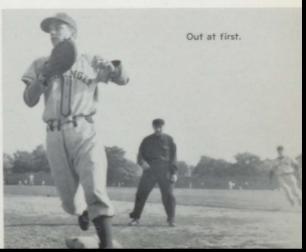

"You mean we won?"

Barringer High's baseball team, after a slow start, finally climbed into second place in the city league. These boys won many thrilling games, due largely to our fine coach, Mr. Claude DiChiara.

Within the next century, a leash shall be placed upon the untamed lion—atomic energy. The power of the universe lies within a tiny atom, bits of forlorn debris strangely resembling a solar system.

There are two courses open to humanity. One is obliteration.

The other is a Utopian dream, of eternal power, being born today. This year the Savannah, first atomic-powered surface ship, shall taste the sea. Subs like the Nautilus need only

PROLOGUE TO

One autumn day when leaves had turned to gold, The air was crisp, the Barringer students bold. They ventured forth, a picnic to attend Beside a stream where willows sway and bend. The bus was quickly filled with girls and boys Who laughed and sang and spoke of all the joys That they had planned so many weeks before To make the outing fun, and not a bore. Before the driver starts to pull away, There are some things that I would like to say Concerning types you'll find in every school. And since a Board of Education rule Demands a chaperone on every trip, I'll first describe our teacher, Mrs. Flipp.

A buxom woman with thinning, silvery hair, Gentle eyes and healthy complexion fair; An understanding heart her obvious trait, Plus an intelligent mind endowed by Fate; She was to set the rules not to be rejected; The students looked to her to be protected. "We will sing a song in harmony, A gay but sentimental melody." This was what Mrs. Flipp commanded. "Do it, or you will be reprimanded."

Here comes the Brain, a student very wise; With his money, books he always buys; The social life did not attract him much, He'd rather read his Chaucer, Poe, and such, His appearance was not very neat; His friends he very often wouldn't greet. In a corner now he takes his place, And from that book will rarely lift his face.

The Life of the Party hopped proudly on the bus;
A crowd gathered round him admiringly making a fuss.
Known by all the girls as a gay blade in manner,
He advertised his charm as if on a banner,
Though popular, high marks he always lacked
Because his life with social things was packed.
His clothes, his eyes, his smile, aimed to impress;
Though not so brilliant, no one thought the less.

The next to come arrived sad and alone;
Walking as if unwanted or unknown.
His friends all gaily waved and said "hello",
He shyly passed and sat in the very last row.
His hair was black as coal, his eyes were blue;
To say he was good-looking would be true.
In sports and clubs he takes no active part,
But at the games he's there before the start.
Silence is a virtue, I agree,
But none should be as silent as is he.
Perhaps some day his quietness will pass,
And he will be the loudest in the class.
